And Merry Christmas." eyes searching the cabin as though she expected to find an answer there. Her gaze fixed on the kitchen. Nolan moved down the hall to his bedroom at the far end. He hadn't trusted himself to answer her. After all, she meant well; it was just that he was too damned tired to put up with any more nonsense from the old woman. adapted to these longer cycles. It hibernates in spores during the cold cycle, when the water and carbon. All in all, I didn't find anything. Except for the books and the deck of cards, there was nothing of. absolute grief appeared on his face. The inner nest was free-form. The New Amsterdamites had allowed it to stay pretty much the way the whirlbirds had built it, only taking down an obstruction here and there to allow humans to move around. It was a maze of gauzy walls and plastic struts, with clear plastic pipes running all over and carrying fluids of pale blue, pink, gold, and wine. Metal spigots from the Podkayne had been inserted in some of the pipes. McKillian was kept busy refilling glasses for the visitors who wanted to sample the antifreeze solution that was fifty per cent ethanol. It was good stuff, Captain Singh reflected as he drained his third glass, and that was what he still couldn't understand. since it meant he'd come that close to not having to bother scouting out two more endorsements. Still, Hinda would have called after him then, called after and made him stay, but she did not know his name. So she went instead to the clearing's edge and cried: "Captain-". The Podkayne was barely visible behind a network of multicolored vines. The vines were tough. Rice Burroughs. In her hand was one of the pump modules she had dissected out of one of the plants. It. "So they are," said Amos. "What do you make of that?" on six jointed legs, waving its antennae, its mouth parts busy. And its four bright eyes stare into his, by BAIRD SEARLES. "Five years from now, that automated probe will leave the Sun and tour the nearby stars to search for habitable worlds... away from Earth, and away from all of Earth's troubles, problems, and perils. Eventually, if all goes well, it will arrive at same place insulated by unimaginable distance from the problems that promise to make strife an inseparable and ineradicable part of the weary story of human existence on this planet." Congreve's expression took on a distant look as he gazed at the replica, as if in his mind he were already soaring with it outward and away. "It will be a new place," he said in a faraway voice. "A new, fresh, vibrant world, unscarred by Man's struggle to elevate himself from the beasts, a place that presents what might be the only opportunity for our race to preserve an extension of itself where it would survive, and if necessary begin again, but this time with the lessons of the past to guide it." better anywhere else." out of sight, still cartwheeling. "But we might see it a lot more clearly from the top of this mountain," But as he said it, the last light of the moon winked out. Now even the stars were gone, and the blackness about them was complete. But as they turned to seek shelter in the rising wind, Amos cried, "There's a light!" "Ideas . . ." he said, in a slow, deliberate manner, as though each word had to be weighed on a scale. "That's mean,
